The following nominations were received for

Word of the Week:
Reasoning;

Lena from Whales

During our daily mile, Lena saw a little worm that without her would have been killed due to being in the path of our mile track. Lena reasoned with the teacher as to why it was more important to save a life than continue running. She then used a series of reasoning skills while selecting different leaf shapes and sizes to transport the worm to the safety of the grass. This really was a real life problem that she was trying to solve. She was then able to focus on our exercise again.

Arahna from Penguins

Arahna demonstrates a positive attitude in every lesson. She quietly listens to teaching and then applies this reasoning to her individual learning, choosing the method which suits her best. She works carefully, taking her time to produce her very best.
