STEM Star of the week

Whales - Flynn

Flynn has stood out as an expert at converting 12 hour and 24 hour times in maths this week. He was making

The following nominations were received for

Word of the Week: Respectful

Whales - Freya

Freya has developed a very respectful attitude throughout the year. I have especially noticed this week that she takes more time to think about the way she asks questions and shares opinions, taking into account the feelings of others. This difference has actually developed across the year and perhaps this could be "Word of the Year" for her - I hope that this continues for the rest of Y4 and into Y5 too.

Atlantis - Sam

Sam is always very respectful of their peers and the staff. They encourage others to be respectful to people and accepting of difference, explaining things in a clear and calm way. Sam also wishes me a good evening every single day when they leave, which is so thoughtful!

Galleons - Jake

Jake has the perfect manners! He treats everyone with the greatest respect and ensures everyone is happy and receives the help they need. From his cheery good morning when answering the register to handing out any resources before even being asked, he is a true gentleman!

Lifeboats - Lyra

Lyra is always respectful in everything she does. She never forgets her manners and shows respect to classmates as well as staff.
